

YOUR HEALTH SCIENCES PROFESSIONALS
• SPEECH LANGUAGE PATHOLOGISTS •

- Speech Language Pathologists are highly trained health care professionals who require a minimum of a Masters Degree to work in Saskatchewan. There is no training facility in Saskatchewan.
- Communication, feeding, swallowing and social skill delays affect many Saskatchewan residents.
- Speech Language Pathologists work with clients in rural and urban health care facilities to assist Saskatchewan people in maintaining and restoring their well being.
- Prevention, diagnostic, therapy, and education services are provided to assess and treat a wide variety of disorders such as autism, head injuries and stroke.
- Speech/Language issues affect up to 15% of the pre-school population and 12% of the senior population
- Speech Language Pathologists are committed to help.